1880: Could you live in the past?

The series
Life-Like Productions is looking for young people who are interested in participating in a new TV series called 1880. Over eight weekly episodes, eight teenagers will live on a farm that recreates life in the late 19th century. Could you live without your phone, your gadgets, and your social network? Could you live with cameras following you 24/7?

The past
How did teenagers use to live in late 19th-century America? Here's what series creator Susie Markham says: "In 1880, most Americans led a rural existence. Children used to help with household chores and farm work as soon as they could, so life for teens used to be much tougher. Houses didn't use to have running water or electricity, so people did everything by hand – fetch water, cook, clean, wash clothes, even build houses. They used to make their own entertainment too. As for school, students of all ages often studied in one room, and few studied beyond the age of 13."

The cast
We're looking for a genuine mix of people to share life on the farm. You might love technology, or feel that modern life is too complicated. Whoever you are, you need to be prepared for surprises.

The audition
Auditions will take place in New York and San Francisco on April 30th. To take part, you must be between the ages of 15 and 19. It doesn't matter how much acting experience you have. You'll be put in groups and asked to act out a short scenario that we'll give you that day. On the day of the audition, you'll need to provide proof of your age. If you're under 18, your parent or guardian will also need to give you permission to attend by signing the Permission Form on our website.

The website
For more information and the Permission Form, go to www.life-likeproductions.com.

- You see the ad on a wall and think a friend might be interested. Read it all. Make notes about the series and how to apply for an audition.

Which tips in the 2 box did you use for help with Exercise 2b? Check (✓) them.

1 Listen and answer the questions you hear by looking at your notes. Don't look at the ad.

HOW TO MAKE NOTES

- Decide what information you need.
- Write headings or questions to help you organize your notes.
- Write only the most important words and ideas.
- Use or invent abbreviations like info (information).

EXACT

Work in pairs. What do you think? Tell your partner and give reasons for your answers.

- What was hardest about life in the USA in 1880?
- What was positive about life at that time?
- Would you like to take part in the show? Why or why not?

What comes after these verbs in the ad: participating in, recreates, live without, and, help with, be prepared for, provide, signing? Check your answers.
